Patricia Ryan is a visionary designer, artist, and entrepreneur. She passed away unexpectedly on August 5, 2025, at the age of 57. Her sudden departure is a profound loss to her family, colleagues, and the San Francisco creative community she so gracefully enriched.

Known for her vibrant energy, fearless spirit, and boundless imagination, Patricia left a lasting mark on the worlds of art, design, music, real estate, and wellness. A lifelong innovator, she co-founded Wonderfeel Biosciences in 2019, where she served as Chief Wonder Maker and creative lead. She always believed that wellness should be accessible and she infused that belief into everything she touched, from brand identity to product experience.

Patricia was born in St. Paul, Minnesota, and grew up in a close-knit, loving family of six. She cherished her parents and siblings, drawing particular inspiration from her mother, the family’s primary breadwinner and a devoted parent. Patricia followed an unconventional career path, becoming an entrepreneur at just 19 when she opened a boutique in Minneapolis. Soon after, she struck out on her own to Chicago, ready to conquer the world in her own way. A true trailblazer in house music, Patricia helped bring the once-underground genre to a wider audience. She went on to co-create the iconic Mushroom Jazz label, produce hundreds of events nationwide, and design more than 100 album covers for OM Records, where she remained a partner.

Patricia's medium of art was light. Through her studio, DSNER, she crafted LED-based works that combined photography, custom algorithms, and intelligent lighting. She also created genre-defining album artwork and bold brand identities that pushed boundaries.

Patricia was a deeply engaged member of the Burning Man community, where she built large-scale installations on the playa. Since 2007, she has been a core contributor to some of Burning Man's most celebrated works, including Peter Hudson's hypnotic zoetropes. Her presence and artistry left a lasting imprint on every space she touched.

Her adventurous spirit extended far beyond her work. Patricia lived fully and fearlessly, racing motorcycles, snowboarding, kitesurfing, and always seeking the next creative challenge. She passed away during a business trip while working on a new sustainable packaging initiative.

Patricia is survived by her husband and longtime collaborator, Baran Dilaver, her siblings, and a wide circle of friends, colleagues, and admirers whose lives she transformed through her work, her spirit, and her presence.

Her luminous legacy lives on – in art, in innovation, and in the hearts of all who knew and loved her.

worldly things

i want to take u with me

wild flowers grow
emotions show
things u nev'r saw
you, i'll draw

into mine took no time in an instant we were constant secured forever refined like sugar

I will take you there born to give without a care
the gift I live

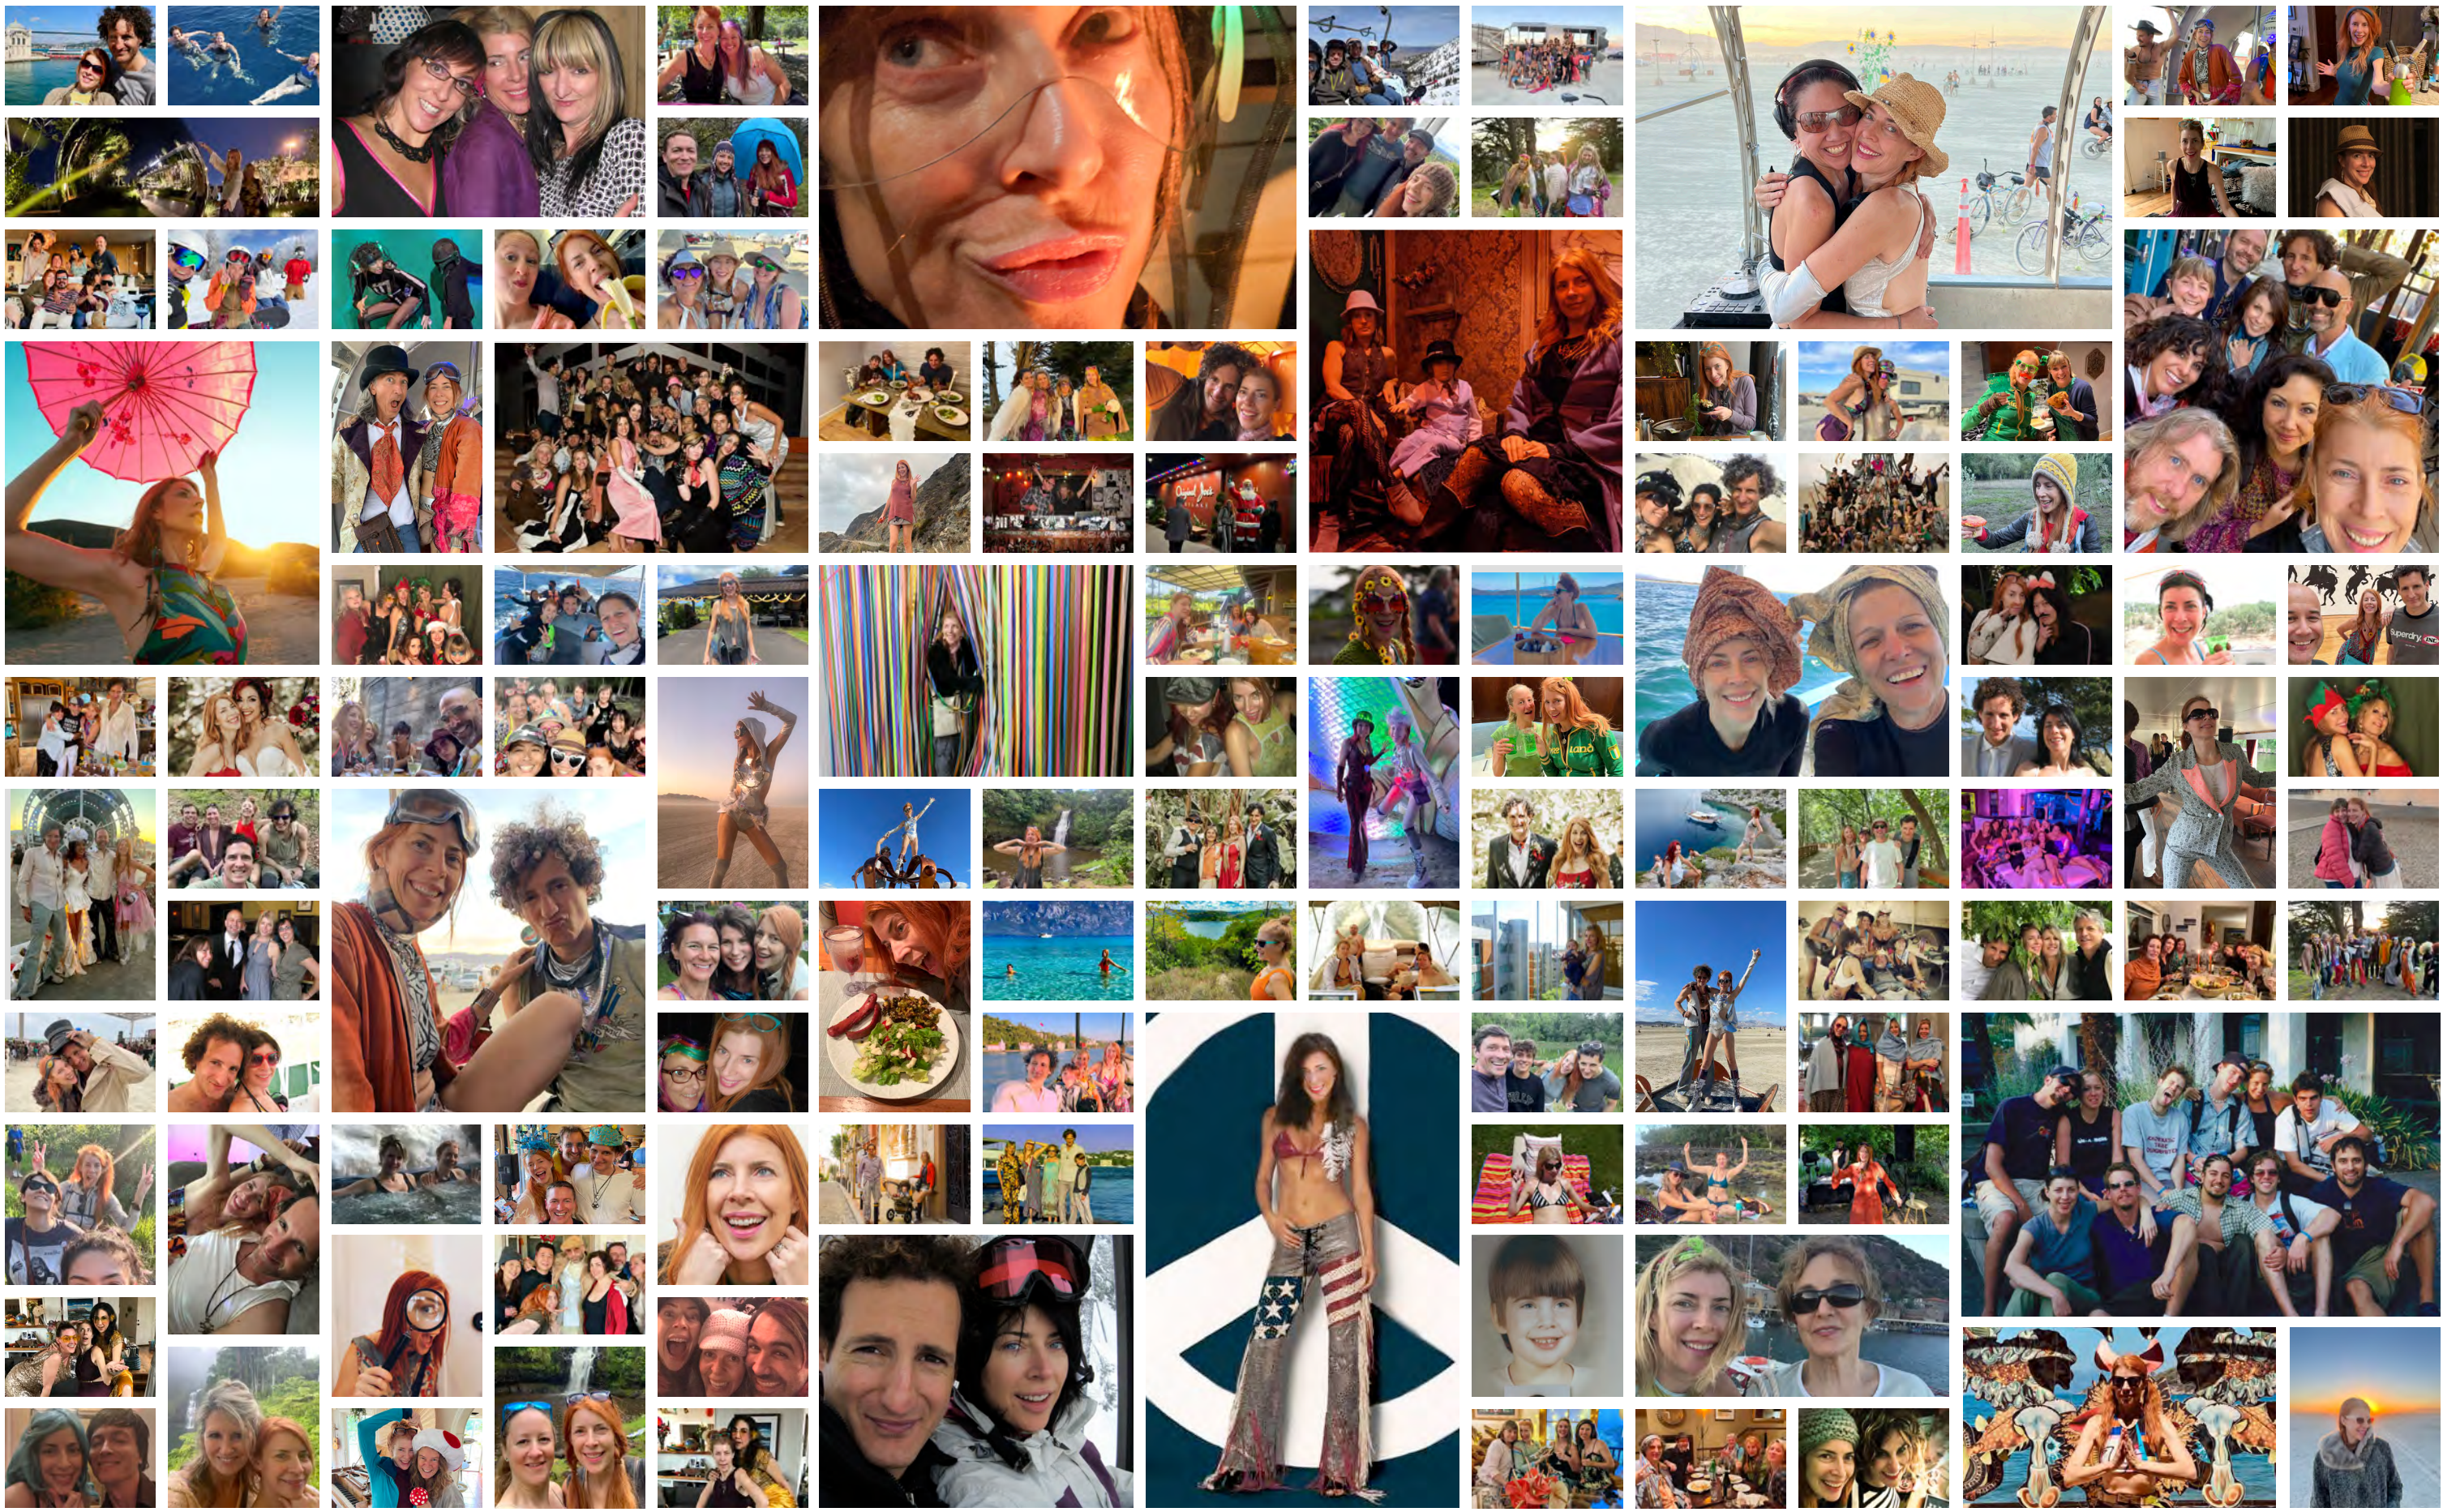

bared? show.
scared? no.
shared? grow.
dared? go.

worldly things we know....defined?

....Never!

Notion keeps heart running

Books unwritten Go without read
Wit and history
You nourish me

Every wait anticipates Hunger pang
A simple story plain

Everything is Yesterday
Tomorrow too
You feed me

Patricia Ryan

Me

Fear not,
My shadow

For the beam of light Rises high...
...and, within.

This crown I'll call Paradise.

A shadow rises
As light falls
Down.

Looking up
Only for your eyes
To see...
...a light guiding
Always, inside me.

Baran

My love spans every horizon from dusk 'till dawn
sunrise to sunset

Evenings, a moon to follow against a calm cricket song
You are my sun at rising dawn

It's not surprising through the depths of night
where stars bring light

This love always finds you

Patricia Ryan 2010

I already know

How my heart longs
how things are away
yet, knowingly things stay

I already know

What will conduct a mind to own
a place of deconstruct falling free toward some unknown

I already know

things I'll try
open to imaginings
something brand and new I always knew...

...behind, what I'd find

Patricia Ryan 2008

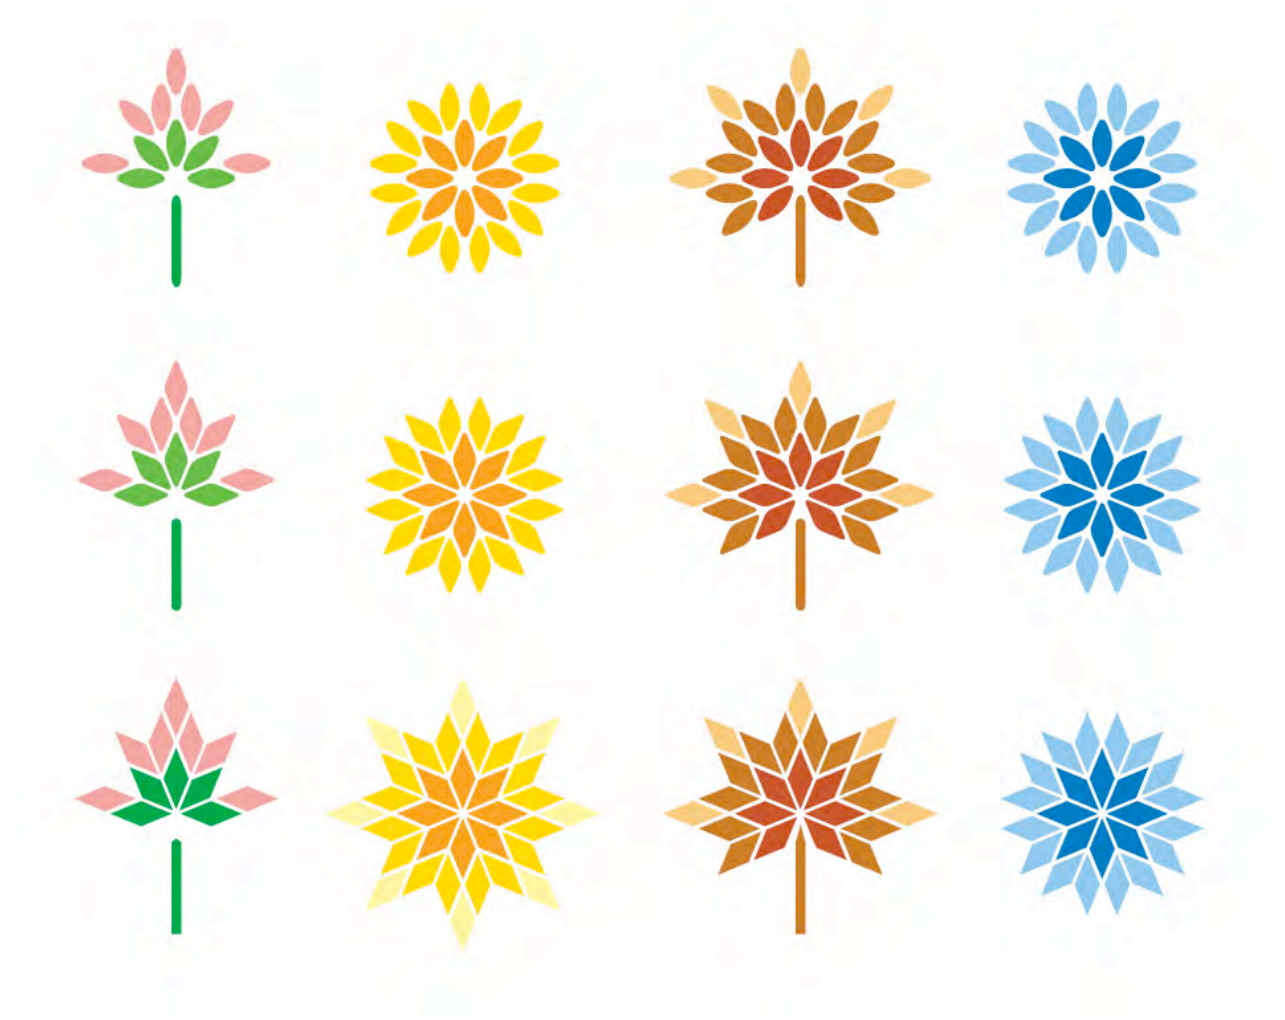

Wings

A World changing
Your eyes opening Slowly...
You'll be free
Soon, you will see

Wings I'll attach Soar above
but understand love
Find your place

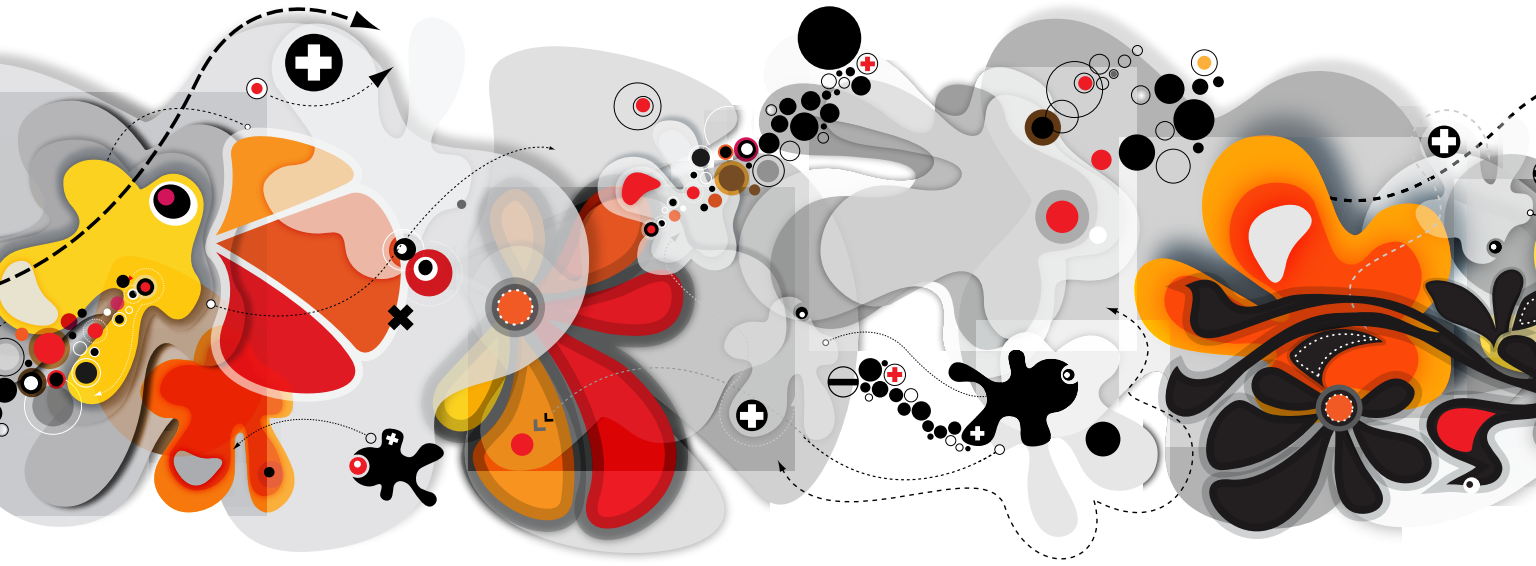

I've got wings.
With much grace
I'll fly too
But, forever...
...will soar in the wings
I've lent you.

"Never give up, never give in, never, never, never, never—in nothing, great or small, large or petty—never give up, and never give in except to convictions of honour and good sense."
